

Commonwealth v. Cassandra Barlow-Tucker

Partially Impounded
SJC-13408

Whether the motion judge properly dismissed the indictments brought against the defendant for involuntary manslaughter, G. L. c. 265, § 13, and reckless endangerment of a child, G. L. c. 265, § 13L, on the grounds that (1) the evidence before the grand jury was insufficient to support the indictments, and (2) the integrity of the grand jury proceedings was impaired by the introduction of certain financial information, "blog" posts, and related testimony and documents.
